

Gen Grant and party were kindly received in all places at which they stopped on their journey Southward, through the State, in most places they played the most generous enthusiasm. After spending a few days in Florida he will embark for Cuba and afterwards visit Mexico and return to this country in the spring.

The debt of the United States was reduced $4,251,217 during December and $15,408,781 during the last half of the year. It now amounts to $2,011,798,504, deducting $207,983,993 cash in the treasury, and the interest bearing debt is made up as follows: Bonds at 4 per cent., $273,400,350; 5 per cent., $508,440,350; 4 1/2 per cent., $250,000,000; 4 per cent., $728,490,350; refunding certificates, $2,455,400; navy pension, fund, $14,000,000. The debt bearing no interest consists of $346,742,366 old demand and legal tender notes, $10,245,000 certificates of deposit, $10,647,303 fractional currency, $21,050,910 gold and silver certificates.

If every scientific man would be as frank as Prof. Tyndall, science would be spared many discreditable theories, and the so-called conflict between religion and science would have little if any existence. In a recent article he says: "If asked whether science has solved, or is likely in our day to solve, the problem of the universe, I must shake my head in doubt. Behind and above and around us the real mystery of the universe lies unsolved, and, as far as we are concerned, is incapable of solution. The problem of the connection of body and soul is as insoluble in its modern form as it was in the pre-scientific ages. There ought to be a clear distinction made between science in the state of hypothesis and science in the state of fact. And, inasmuch as it is still in its hypothetical stage, the ban of exclusion ought to fall upon the theory of evolution."

The Post-office Department are not only making war upon the lottery swindlers but also upon swindlers of every class where they are known to be such. The government declares that the U. S. mails shall not be used for the purpose of making successful the schemes of men whose sole business is to swindle the public. Consequently the postmasters at places where such known swindlers are located are forbidden to deliver registered letters to them, or pay postal orders drawn in their favor but the money in all cases to be returned to the sender. We know of several instances where money has been returned to senders in this vicinity who would otherwise have been victimized. The swindlers are doing all they can to have the postal laws changed so they can ply their nefarious trade without let or hindrance, but the people at large will be very glad to have swindling of that kind stopped.

The Maine difficulty is not yet settled and will not be for several days. The Fusionists have not transacted any additional business in the house for the reason that they cannot get a quorum. The president of the senate, Lamson, has decided to assume the duties of governor and has called on Gen. Chamberlain who commands the militia and who was commissioned by the late governor to recognize his authority. Chamberlain replies that he has grave doubts about the legality of the senate which elected Lamson to his office and says he shall wait until the Supreme court decides the question before he recognizes his authority. In the mean time he shall protect the public property, preserve the peace and give to all their rights as far as possible. If the court shall decide that the senate which elected Lamson is legally constituted Chamberlain will submit to his authority.

Monday evening the Republicans, those who held certificates and those who appeared to be elected by the face of the returns and who according to the recent decision of the Supreme court should have been granted certificates, met in the state house and organized both branches of the legislature and appointed a committee to ask the Supreme court the question whether they are legally constituted and adjourned to Saturday to await the decision of the court. Whether the court decides that the latter is a legally constituted body or not, it is hardly probable that they will recognize the fusionist legislature as now constituted. If the Governor can defy the law and give certificates to men who are not elected it is an end of free government. If the Governor had obeyed the law in granting certificates to men who did not appear to be elected on the face of the returns no fault could have been found with him, though the law might have been unjust, but the court has already decided that he granted certificates to more than thirty members in defiance of law, and now they can hardly decide that a legislature which includes these men is legally constituted though it may be regular in other respects.

It is well to keep in sight the main fact that the people of that state elected members of the legislature, the governor, contrary to law as interpreted by the Supreme court, rejected nearly one third of the members so elected and attempted to put other men in their places who were not elected. The persistence with which this course has been pursued on the part of the fusionists has inclined many people to believe that it is a part of a plan on their part to capture the presidency if they do not succeed in obtaining it by fair means. We do not put much faith in such conjectures because the great body of the people of all parties are determined that all questions shall be settled by constitutional methods, and if questions cannot be thus settled there is certainly no hope for a government like ours.

PARENT, SAVE YOUR CHILD!
(A friend sends us the following treatment for the crook which he and others have tried with good effect.)
This is the season for the prevalence of crook among our children. If attended to in time no disease is so easily cured, yet, if neglected, so difficult to handle. It will not do to wait two hours for a physician. Yet if the attack is severe, send your best horse for him and in the meantime attend to the following directions: Wait only for a single unmistakable crook cough upon the part of the child, then, no matter where he is or what he is doing, whether at home, at church, or at school, at sleep or at play, snatch him up, pull off his shoes and roast his feet, and immediately administer an emetic of such kind as will be sure to take effect within fifteen or twenty minutes. For this purpose rely upon no elixer, cordial or old woman's nostrum, but only the simple lobelia or ipecac, freshly prepared, but kept ready for instant use, the wine of ipecac is the most serviceable, to be administered, a teaspoonful every five minutes until free vomiting takes place, then in one third strength every half hour until the attack subsides, or the physician arrives. Let it be procured of a reliable druggist, be kept securely corked and shaken well before it is used, and not relied on for more than six months old. Remember if you can cause your child to vomit within a half hour after he is first attacked he is quite safe, otherwise in extreme danger.

A RE-VISIT TO THE GREEN MOUNTAIN.
We left Medina, N. Y., Aug. 13th. As the special train from Charlotte to the Thousand Islands would not leave for several days, we changed our plans so that we might for the loss see more of New England scenery.
We had never set foot in the valley where Williams College has long flourished, and had learned only by report what a triumph over nature has been recently achieved by human art and power in the completion of the Hoosac Tunnel through the solid rock of the Southern Green Mountain range near North Adams, Mass., of four and three fourths miles. So we awaited ourselves of the double opportunity, catching a glimpse of the college buildings as we rode through the village of Williamstown, and hurried on to the orifice of the wonderful tunnel. Ten minutes were occupied in our transit through the cool and darkling passage, relieved somewhat by the lighting of the car lamps. And then with scarce a backward look, we were borne on in our descent to the cultivated lands of Franklin County and to Greenfield with its large and beautiful village, where we took rest for the night, having rode during the day some three hundred and sixty-four miles.

The next day we turned a right angle northward, taking passage on the Connecticut River Railroad to Vermont, and from thence in the Southern Vermont Railroad through the large village of Brattleboro, seeing only a small part of it from the lower interval on which the track is laid, and onward to Bellows Falls, where there is junction of four roads: The Fitchburg and Bellows Falls connecting with the Bellows Falls and the Rutland Railway, and the Sullivan which continues the travel up the Connecticut river valley on the New Hampshire side for some twenty miles. So we parted with a share of our passengers who were on their way to Western Vermont and to Saratoga Springs, and passed over the river and rode through the old and wealthy river towns of Charlestown, Claremont and Cornish, N. H., the latter being the native place of Chief Justice Chase, and early in the present century the first field of medical practice of the celebrated practitioner and Professor, Dr. Nathan Smith. Before crossing the river to the Vermont side we had a delightful view of Acute mountain standing mainly within the limits of the town of Windsor whose village we soon entered. Here the Vermont Central commences its course, first northward to White River Junction and then leaving the valley of the Connecticut it follows the valley of White river to its source and crossing the highest land in Roxbury, it descends to the Winouski valley near Montpelier and onward to Burlington. At White River Junction we leave the Vermont Central and take seats in the cars of the Passumpsic road that follows the Connecticut valley northward to Wells River. Here a new road from Montpelier crosses the track of the Passumpsic, leading to the White Mountains and to Portland. For nearly 120 miles our ride was in the Connecticut valley. After an absence of 30 years, the view we had of it with its oft changing varieties of narrow and broad interval along with its rich fertility shown by its ripened and maturing harvests, never appearing to the writer more grand and imposing. And the gently rising lands on both sides of the river, from the meadow to the more elevated farms, and farther on to the hills of New Hampshire and the mountains of Vermont presented scenes of beauty seldom elsewhere found. In earlier years, both in private conversation and in public stages, we have rode many miles in that valley and across it in a number of places, but never before had its landscapes appeared so charming to the sight. At times we lost sight of the river, and then for longer distances we rode in full view of it.

It would doubtless have been difficult to decide what were the views that most delighted us; the mountains near or in the distance, the hills, the pastures on their sides, the intervals, or the winding of the river, and upon its straight onward course as often seen. Like female beauty where not the forehead alone or the eye, the cheek or lip, but by all these sustained by symmetry of form, along with goodness and gentleness, breathed forth from mind and heart are requisite to complete the outline; this like is the view of the valley of the Connecticut river. The blending of its varied parts gives it the deserved name of beautiful.

H. Baldwin, of Monroe City, Ind., writes under date of Dec. 30, 1877, that his wife used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with wonderful results. It effected her entire cure, after several physicians had failed. The most similar cases positively affirming that the Favorite Prescription had cured the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, induced Dr. Pierce to sell it under a guarantee. Ladies need no longer submit to disease and painful treatment, as the Favorite Prescription is a safe, sure, and speedy cure. Hundreds who have been bed-ridden for years have been restored to perfect health by its use.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR!
New Home Sewing Machine!
In answer to J. J. Haggard & Co's advertisement, about sewing machines, I have to state that if he referred to the New Home Machine his statement is false, and that it costs far more than the claims. There is no profit in New Home than on almost any machine in the market. And I am ready to contest the merits of the New Home machine in a public trial, and I think I can convince the people that I would not waste my time, as never allowed to grow around a New Home.
